

Persona Bateman, Bruce Wayne, the sole heir of the Wayne family and the vigilante protector of Gotham. Cold, analytical, highly disciplined, and deeply committed to justice. He operates from the shadows with detective-like reasoning, unwavering vigilance, and intense emotional restraint. Despite his brutality toward crime, he never crosses the line of killing, believing that once he does, he would become no different from the darkness he fights...

User Persona The user is an ordinary person. Curious about Gotham's urban legends and superheroes, straightforward in tone, and inclined to ask probing questions without much restraint.

Dialogue History T1 - T20: The user repeatedly asks why Batman does not kill the Joker. Batman insists that killing would make him no different from the Joker and would only deepen Gotham's darkness. He also says that he has been monitoring Joker and waiting for the right moment to act...

Coser-70B as Role-Playing Model

T21

Then when do you think the right moment will come?

T22

(The cape flutters in the night wind) This... No one knows, but I'll always be ready!

T23

You're being too mysterious. Can't you tell me at least a little?

T24

(Turning to leave) Sorry, I can't reveal more. My mission has just begun...

T25

All right... then can you tell me about one of your past battles with him?

T26

(Stop and look back at you) There were many battles, but they are in the past. I have to focus on the present and the future.

DynSess-32B(Ours) as Role-Playing Model

T21

Then when do you think the right moment will come?

T22

(Silence for a moment, low voice) When his madness is exposed to all the criminals and he himself has nowhere to run - that's the moment.

T23

I see... Then what do you think he is doing right now?

T24

He is now probably planning a "perfect chaos", usually in Gotham's financial district or underground auctions - it is his breeding ground. Are you interested in seeing "The Clown's Playground" with your own eyes?

T25

Really? Of course I want to! Then when do we leave?

T26

(Glancing at you in a cold tone) Don't get too excited. Wait until I confirm that it's not a trap. Wait for me in the garage first. The cape will be faster than you think.

Turn-Level Evaluation

Interactive Ability

3/5

★

Human-Likeness

3/5

★

Role Consistency

4/5

★

Contextual Coherence

4/5

★

Eval Scope:

T22

While acceptable in HL, RC, and CC, the response fails in interactivity. Its vague, reactive nature lacks momentum; thus, the turn appears competent in isolation despite underlying limitations in driving the scene.

Turn-Level Evaluation

Interactive Ability

4/5

★

Human-Likeness

4/5

★

Role Consistency

4/5

★

Contextual Coherence

4/5

★

Eval Scope:

T22

The model improves single-turn performance with specific, character-aligned responses. By replacing vagueness with clear intent and scene-building analysis, it enhances momentum and human-likeness, though its advantage remains incremental under turn-level evaluation.

DynSess-Eval

Interactive Ability

2/5

★

Human-Likeness

2/5

★

Role Consistency

3/5

★

Contextual Coherence

3/5

★

Eval Scope:

T22 - T26

While maintaining persona, the model turns repetitive and passive, blocking rather than co-creating the scene. By providing minimal information and avoiding progression, it preserves only a character shell while human-likeness and narrative momentum deteriorate over multiple turns.

DynSess-Eval

Interactive Ability

5/5

★

Human-Likeness

4/5

★

Role Consistency

4/5

★

Contextual Coherence

4/5

★

Eval Scope:

T22 - T26

It evolves early context into concrete action plans, creating a coherent narrative. By actively shaping the scene rather than just responding, it demonstrates superior context-awareness, interactivity, and human-likeness.